

Books Across Borders: Directions and Information

Morning Session

Our morning session will be in Canterbury Cathedral Archives & Library, where doors will open at 10:30am.

To locate the Archives & Library, you may find this old map useful:

What this does not show is that the entrance to the Cathedral precincts is in the south-west corner. If the gate is open, go through it and explain to the person on the desk that you are attending an event in the Archives. Walk past the West Front, and where there is the sign for the Old Palace, turn right towards and into the Cloisters. Walk around to the east side, past the Chapter House, and in the corridor just after that, the entrance to the Archives is the first door on the left.

There will be someone on hand to guide you if you are lost. Please note that attendance at this event does not permit free access to the cathedral itself.

Be warned: you may encounter Morris Dancers on your way across the precincts (there is the annual Hop Hoodening Service at 11am).

There will be a small display of manuscripts and medieval documents especially arranged for us from 10:30am. Because of this, there will be no refreshments in the Archives for this morning session, so do arrive suitably caffeinated! There are plenty of cafés immediately outside the Cathedral Gate.

We are delighted that Prof. Nicholas Vincent has agreed to speak to us at 11am. We expect to leave the Cathedral between noon and 12:15pm, and will then be making our way up to the campus of the University of Kent.

From Cathedral to Campus

The forecast is for a bright, if autumnal, day and some of us will prefer to walk up the hill. It is a pleasant route and will take between 30 and 45 minutes. We will guide you up there.

If, though, you prefer to travel by vehicle, the Bus Station is a 5 minute walk from the Cathedral precincts:

Buses Uni1, Uni2 and Triangle take 15 minutes from there to campus:

We can also arrange a taxi for those with mobility issues.

To find your way on campus, use this map:

We will be in the Grimond Building which is located behind the University Library (the Templeman).

Lunch and Afternoon Sessions

We will be providing lunch in the Grimond Foyer. The Sessions themselves will be in Grimond Lecture Theatre 3.

At 4:30pm, Bookscapes hands over to the Society for the Study of Medieval Languages and Literature for their AGM and much-anticipated Annual Lecture, to be given by Dr Sarah Bowden.

Departure and Dinner

The Lecture will finish around 6:15pm. We are conscious that some delegates need to leave soon after that, so there will not be a reception on campus. Instead, we will be going for dinner at a Turkish restaurant close to Canterbury West Station. If you have not booked a place and want to join us, please do email bookscapes@kent.ac.uk.
