Parenting and Personhood: Cross-cultural perspectives on family-life, expertise, and risk management

Thursday 23 and Friday 24 June 2016

The Cathedral Conference Centre, Canterbury, Kent, UK (Thursday)
The University of Kent, Canterbury, UK (Friday)

Organised by Centre for Parenting Culture Studies and the project 'Parenting Cultures and Risk Management in Plural Norway' (ParCul), Uni Research Rokkansenteret (Norway).

At the conference, findings from the ParCul project will be presented by the research team.

Confirmed keynote speakers are:

- Professor Annette Lareau (Sociology, University of Pennsylvania).
- Professor Thomas Hylland Eriksen (Social Anthropology, University of Oslo)
- Professor Frank Furedi (Sociology, University of Kent).

We invite paper proposals addressing at least one of the following topics:

- Parenting cultures in the family
- Interfaces of parenting cultures and civil society
- Parenting cultures and expertise.

As a result of ongoing global economic, social and cultural changes, new parenting norms, ideologies and practices are emerging around the world. This conference aims to bring together researchers from various disciplines who are interested in the interplay between parenting cultures, personhood, expertise and risk management. Our aim is to provide a venue for genuinely interdisciplinary dialogue for those with common research interests.

How is being a 'good parent' differently composed and how can we study these variations? What kinds of personhood are these discourses and practices aimed at fostering? How are general ideas of living in a risk society or a risk culture relevant for different parenting cultures?

We welcome both theoretical and empirical ventures into these questions, and papers may include interdisciplinary approaches.
