Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support – ‘A good fit’ creating the right conditions

Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support implemented well both create the right conditions to improve the quality of life experienced by people with learning disabilities and their carers. There is good evidence to show that Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support work well together and can reduce the need for behaviours that concern or that challenge services.

Internationally renowned Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support experts will help delegates explore what Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support actually look like and feel like in practice.

Good leadership and coaching skills are needed to encourage staff to deliver skilled support at the right level for individual people. Conference speakers will explain how to get this right and also how to measure and monitor the outcomes for individuals and services.

Who should attend?

Practitioners, team leaders and personal assistants from health, education and social care who wish to expand their knowledge of Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support and explore the potential benefits to the people they support and the service they offer. Families commissioners and inspectors, who want to know what good support looks like.

Keynote speakers

Sandy Toogood

Bangor University, Wales

Sandy Toogood is a doctoral board certified behaviour analyst with a special interest in using person centred behavioural approaches to help people with intellectual disabilities overcome challenging behaviour and live ordinary lives in the community. Sandy has combined clinical work with teaching, conference presentations, developing training materials and has contributed to various professional and academic journals and books. Sandy is a part time senior lecturer in applied behavior analysis and an independent consulting behaviour analyst.

Julie Beadle-Brown

The Tizard Centre, Kent

Julie Beadle-Brown is reader in intellectual and developmental disabilities at the Tizard Centre, University of Kent, UK and professor in disability studies, Living with Disability Research Centre, La Trobe University, Australia. Julie focuses primarily on helping services enable and empower people they support to grow in independence, experience real choice and control and become valued members of their community. The author of a range of resources around person centred Active Support.

Linda Pitt

Linda has severe learning disability and motor disabilities; she lives at home with her family and attends Afon Community Link day service.

Linda has shown vast progress since staff have been supporting her through Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support. One of her highlights has been gaining work experience at the local library through staff support she can independently do most everyday tasks. She is very proud of achieving and learning new skills.

Kathy Lowe

Abertawe Bro Morgannwg University Health Board, Wales

Kathy Lowe is a service development consultant, and her key roles are in service improvement training and research focusing on Positive Behaviour Support (PBS). She is also involved in several advisory groups on the development of learning disability and challenging behaviour services. Kathy is a visiting professor at the University of South Wales, Cardiff.

Workshops

- What do you want to do, Sandy Toogood, Bangor University, Wales
Our aim is to make and maintain conditions that make behaviours of concern irrelevant. This workshop will enable delegates to identify aspects of the social environment that can be changed to meet aim by using a person-centred functional assessment.
- How can we tell if we have done what we said we would do? Kathy Lowe and Edwin Jones, Abertawe Bro Morgannwg University Health Board, Wales
This innovative workshop will focus on how we measure the impact of Active Support and Positive Behaviour Support on outcomes for the people we support. We will focus on two approaches: systematic data collection and direct observation.
- Active support and interactive training, Christine Rose, Independent Consultant and BILD PBS Consultant, England
This workshop will give people tools and information on how interactive training supports staff to deliver active support in practice.
- Positive Behaviour Support and restrictive practices: where are we getting stuck and how can we move forward, Sarah Leitch, BILD PBS Development Manager, England
This workshop explores where organisations may be having difficulty implementing strategies to reduce the use of restrictive practices.
- True Grit – Making Active Support Succeed, Mandy Tilston-Viney Cartrefi Cymru Cyf, Wales
Establishing Active Support as a reality in the lives of the people you support means finding organisational determination in the face of a number of challenges. This workshop will explore the common obstacles and what has to be done to overcome them.
